“ Dear Angie. Your loss touches us who are loving mothers and your friends. The love you ask us to share about Grace and her life is inspiring. I know your resolve to remember her and share loving memories is a way for those around you to grow in comfort from the life she lived.
As with devoted mothers, you have been, and are, part of her voice - your voice is near and hers will stay alive to those who knew and love her. Your talent for speaking to inspire just expanded from your daughter's love. We are here for you. Please know you are in your friend's thoughts and prayers, in everlasting love. Jeanne McCarthy

“ Grace,

As memories of you run through my head, I have only wonderful things to say. I remember the first year of college, living together in a dorm suite. We learned so much about each other within a matter of days. I was awed by your fearless nature, your friendly spirit, and perseverance in everything you did. I am lucky to have experienced college life with someone like you and I will never forget the times we had.

Some highlights: learning that you love the cold and can withstand snowstorms in shorts, eating your most amazing chocolate chip cookies, makeshift fitness classes in our dorm, and many hours of studying together.

As we moved on to separate medical schools, the times we saw each other grew further apart, but they became more meaningful. It meant so much to see you at picnics and potlucks in Philly, knowing what a difficult schedule you had. The last few times I saw you were at brunch with Max. You looked so so happy with him, and I am glad you had someone special to spend your remaining time with.

You were such an inspiration. I want you to know that I always admired you for the way you pursued your goals head-on, without looking back. I will always remember you with a bright smile on your face. Rest in peace.

Love,
Goda

“ My sister's 2 kids, Grace & JJ, have always held a special part in our lives. To us, they were both the children we never had.

2 events in Grace's life cemented the person she was inside- a tough feisty person with a love for life, yet sweet & tender to the core.

As a 5 year old, her mom asked me to send her & her brother to their baby sister's place. Grace actually directed & navigated me from her home in Newton MA to her baby sister's place somewhere off Harvard Square. Imagine a 5 year old directing her uncle who was driving on unfamiliar roads from a baby seat in the backseat. She even remarked "well done Uncle Harold!!" Such was her feisty spirit from such a tender age. We knew she was destined for great things from thereon.

The other event happened during her last visit to us in Singapore during Christmas of 2016. The conversation somehow turned towards me & my wife, not having children or relatives to look after us in our old age. Without a single hesitation, Grace stepped up & declared that she would take care of us. While we knew that realistically that scenario would have been extremely challenging, her spontaneous & unselfish sincerity touched my wife & I deeply. Never did it cross our minds that her love for life & her loved ones would be cut short so unexpectedly.

We celebrate Grace's entering into God's glory and someday we shall be re-united. Until then, Grace will forever remain in our hearts & we know she is watching over all of us. As her mother (my sister, Angela) has boldly declared: let us focus on the love around and not focus on the loss. Grace- Uncle & Auntie will always remember & cherish your memory no matter where we are in the world.

Rest in Peace.

Lots of Love and Hugs

Uncle Harold & Auntie Caren

“ Grace,
The very first time we met was just today, in this room. It is through your mother that I can say I somehow know you. Your destiny has touched my heart and I will remember the beautiful picture she shared with us just days ago, from happy moments with wine tasting and cheese and smiles, I will be here for your mom, that is my promise.

“ Grace, you were an incredibly fun, loving, and hard-working part of the High School South Pirate Diving team. Always practicing drills and making efforts to improve your skills when others simply chatted in-front of the space heater to keep warm -- you insisted that jumping in and out of the water kept your blood flowing! Your smile was infectious and your thirst for knowledge contagious. I remember the day you learned about 'power naps' in one of your classes - how they are scientifically proven to rejuvenate the brain - and the ENTIRE diving team proceeded to take a 20 minute nap before diving practice! I also recall your excitement upon your return from Antarctica. You could not stop talking about it for weeks, and said you wanted to travel to all seven continents. Truly an adventurous spirit.
You were generous with your time, always offering to give me (an underclassman) rides to and from practices and competitions. And you loved my cat! That orange ball of fur sure loved getting your attention too.

Grace, you will forever live on in my heart. Rest in peace <3

Love Always,
Louise

“ Dear Angie,

Hana kindly shared the news of your tragic loss. Grace was bright and beautiful and the kind of person any parent would be proud to call daughter and who I wish I had known. I was impressed by her achievements during the short time she was alive . I did not know Grace but will miss the amazing contribution she would have given to the world and am very sorry for your and your family's loss. My thoughts are with you for the days ahead.

Sincerely
Catherine Roks
