“ I didn't know Jeremy that well but I worked with him at Freed Beans for six months or so. He was always kind to me and I thought of him as a gentle giant. My heart goes out to his family and friends. May he rest in peace and his memory be a blessing

“ The first time I ever saw Jeremy was after dark on the back way to Zerns. I'd been reading about yetis that day and in the dark alongside the road I saw a large dark shape sort of lumbering along. My mind snapped into "Holy sh they're real" until I heard "Hey Jeremy , how ya doing?" from April or Tom. The headlights picked up and to my relief the shape was just a young man.

He was one of the kids you could count on to just be there when you needed him. At graduation practice 2 young men who have a forever spot in my heart just happened to be in the nurse's office when I called because my stubborn son, Christopher, was very sick . His tonsils were infected and he insisted on walking with his class. The doctors recommended emergency surgery but his graduation was that important and he's too much like me when it comes to stubborn. I dropped Chris off for practice, went home and called the nurse because he was not supposed to be out of bed. She told me 2 young men just happened to be in her office asking her if she could check on Chris because something was wrong and they both knew he didn't get high but he wasn't all right and they were worried. They just happened to be one Jeremy Hine and one David James Horst, my godson and nephew. Those young men each spoke with me. "Don't worry, I'll catch him if he falls" from Jeremy and "Don't worry Aunt Chrissy, I've got his back" from David . They became my son's guardian angels and each has a special spot in my heart and soul for providing a safety plan so my son could maintain his pride, graduate with his class, and not know that his mom, the nurse, and 2 friends of his worked out a way to keep him safe. The nurse rearranged the alphabet so that HUtson graduated between HIne and HORst. Both Jeremy and David are gone now. Two very special lights in this currently dark world went out way too soon. His heart was so big and he will be missed by many.

“ Jeremy...I certainly never expected that call I got on Monday. I still can't believe you're gone.

Thank you for the firsts we shared, the love, laughter, grief, and heartache. In the end, we were friends and I'll cherish that friendship and the memories.

Rest in Peace.

“ He and I didn't get along the greatest, but what brothers do? He always had my back though when it came to knuckle and grit. Never let me quit on anything.
