“Dr. AnneMarie Mackway-Girardi and I worked together as colleagues at Western Lee County Health Clinic (part of Stone Mountain Health Services in southwestern Virginia) for fifteen years. AnneMarie was such a wondrous blessing to all of us, staff and patients alike. She was greatly beloved by all who knew her. Her breadth and depth of knowledge were remarkable, and her doctorate in pharmacy proved most useful when consulting Dr. Mackway on medication management in problematic or difficult to treat patients, especially those on multiple medications. Dr. Mackway's love of teaching was readily apparent in her daily interaction with clinic staff, patients, and periodic students.

Dr. Mackway was a formidable and well-informed patient advocate at many levels of health care, and her advocacy truly made a difference in many lives over the years. Dr. Mackway and her husband, Dr. Tony Girardi, both greatly enjoyed the beauty and rich cultural heritage of southern Appalachia, and were deeply involved in their local and regional community during their many years here. We miss Dr. AnneMarie Mackway-Girardi, and we are so thankful to God for the abiding legal she left us here in Lee County, Virginia.

“ I am so grateful for Dr AnnMarie's professional care in our rural community. She always explained diagnosis in a simplistic way so a layman could understand. I served on the Stone Mountain Board with her where she was a strong advocate for our local community medical needs. She & Tony lived on a farm next to my husband & me & we often encountered them on our daily walk & exchanged friendly conversation or produce from our gardens. Ann Marie was a woman of strong faith and I have enjoyed many conversations about the goodness & faithfulness of our Father God. She was a model if how Christians should face critical health issues & impending death. I guess I would say AnnMarie was not only my doctor and my friend ,but also my heroine.
