“ In Petra, Jordan, we hiked a lot together. Dad's wasn't used to this and so his sneakers were hurting his feet - he kept saying he felt like they were pushing against his toes. Elliott and I were thinking we'd need to go to someplace that would have sneakers or even hiking boots for Dad to buy. Knowing this was not such an easy option where we were, Dad instead asked the front desk of the hotel for a big knife, and stood at the front desk cutting out the portion of his sneakers that was right above the toes! We laughed so much and made lots of fun, but Dad continued to hike with us for days and swore his feet felt fine after that.

“ At Uncle Barry's 50th birthday party, when the cake was being cut, Uncle Barry was asked what piece of cake he wanted. He replied "the corner!"

I asked him why the corner... His response.... It has more icing. Since then, I ask for the corner, with the decorations.
