Dad worked as an electrician at the Limierick Nuclear Powerplant for 13 years. As a teen, he would get me work there in the summer/winter doing odd jobs in the electrical shop where he was a supervisor. One of the jobs was receiving enormous bins full of tangled up electrical chords from all over the powerplant, detangling them and rolling them back up by hand. It was a never ending job cleaning up after 100s of electricians and taught me patience and perserverance for sure. At the end of the summer I hand made an award for him for 1 Million chords wrapped (ala McDonalds - 1 million served) and asked his supervisot to presnt it to him. It probably wasn't quite a million but sure felt like it.

“ One of my most comical memories of Dad was a fishing trip to Canada. This particular year I was like 15 or 16 and more interested in getting a good tan and boys than fishing BUT being from an all girl family we all knew how to fish. So he asked me if I wanted to go out on the lake to fish. I said yes, put on my bathing suit and off we went. I slathered up with sun tan lotion, baited my hook and threw it in. Then I settled back, stretched out so I could tan properly and wrapped the line around my big toe so I could feel if I got a bite. Dad was fishing, fishing, fishing. In and out, constantly changing his lure, etc. working very hard. Time passes and I got a bite, so I jump up and reel it in. I caught a 20 something inch bass, doing basically nothing!! Of course dad congratulated me but with that he pulled in his line and said, "lets call it a day". Despite all his hard work, he had caught nothing and his teenage daughter did. It was funny!
