“ Several people asked me share my reading at Donna's Memorial service.

At this time I would like to share some of the things that Donna loved and enjoyed plus the things I will remember her by. My sister had a beautiful smile, hearty laugh and a good sense of humor. Donna also loved when you asked her advice on her nursing skills and took pride in being the nurse and care taker that she was. Donna loved her blond highlights and after getting her hair done she would always admire looking in the mirror with her beautiful hazel eyes. Donna's favorite thing to wear was sun dresses and flip flops oh any jean jacket she could steal from me. She always took pride in her home, with decorating and painting, her favorite décor was sunflowers and moons and stars. She loved the phillies and even the Dallas team. One of her favorite pass times was to go flea marketing or have a yard sale herself and going to the beach. Whenever we had family parties, which Donna cherished, you could always count on her for a lot of laughs, a great taco salad and being the last one there till the beer ran out.

Just recently Donna and I took a road trip and instead of talking about herself all she wanted to hear about was my upcoming trip. She commented how proud she was on all my hard work and to be able to afford to go away to another country. She then proceeded to talk about how she wished she could go back to work, she really missed her days working as a nurse but because of her back pain she could no longer do the physical work. Which brings me back to a statement she made to me “No one will understand the pain I am in till they walk in my Flip Flops”. So in honor of you Donna I wear my flip flops and jean jacket.

Donna always posted quotes on her facebook page and one of her last entries read;

*Know my history
Know my struggles
Then you can judge my choices.*

None of us would ever be able to understand the pain she was in physically and emotionally. We should celebrate the true person Donna we know to be. We should celebrate the fact that our sister, mother, daughter, Aunt and grandmother is now at peace. Let's share stories among ourselves of our beloved Donna to the shed light on the person she was without her struggles.

Donna shared one more quote that touched me and I felt it fitting to close with;

Forgiving people who don't deserve to be forgiven is the greatest form of liberation you'll ever experience. It yields to tremendous release of resentment (that you've been shouldering for so long) and allows your energy to expand beyond self-induced boundaries. This is self-love at its finest.

Donna know you were loved, May you rest in peace.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the family and friends for their love and support during our time of sorrow.
