“ Alex, the man from whom I learned so much. Even though he frequently said Grace and I were never synonymous he faced life graciously. His sense of humor always shown through even as I was dropping him to the floor instead of into his wheelchair. I will never forget the road trip we took to Valley Forge Park to spread his mother’s ashes or the way he introduced me as the woman who made it possible for him to go to work. Alex was an accomplished author as well as an advocate for others with DISABILITIES. Alex was a kind caring man who will live on in our hearts and through his published words.

With love in my heart, Alex, I wish you a peaceful rest

“ Alex was an amazing human being, a real fighter. His sense of humor and his curiosity for life were awe inspiring. If you knew Alex you knew a bright light.

Sleep peacefully sweet Alex. Your light will always be in our lives.

Diane Cusimano wrote me today:

"I hope he is in a place where he can use his arms and legs again. He certainly was one smart man. Unfortunately, I won't be able to come to his service because I have to go to school. But please give his hand a little squeeze and tell him it's from me."
