“ I just learned of the November 2019 death of one of my closest Eastern Baptist College classmates, Jim Fraser. We loved talking Philadelphia sports and debating and arguing over theology and politics. In 1963 we went together to watch the Cassius Clay fight against Sonny Liston at the Philadelphia Athletic Club on closed circuit TV. Early in the fight the transmission went out and disgruntled fans hurled chairs, one of which clipped Jim and we hustled out of there to safety. Also we survived the Phillies collapse of 1964. Perpetual light shine on my conservative friend and deep love to his wife and family. Friends for eternity!

“ *Fran, so sad to hear of Jim's passing. I thought the two of you made the best Jim and Fran combo ever. I only knew the two of you for a brief time on a bus trip to the Grand Canyon. May you find peace in knowing Jim is no longer suffering.
