“ I went to Binghamton North High with Pat and Sally. Graduated 1966. Pat and I took secretarial courses and I was in awe of her skills. I remember our shorthand teacher, Mrs. Wurth, dictating 120 words/minute while Pat's pencil would fly across the pages of her notebook. Then, she would read EVERY WORD back to our class. Back in the day, that was about as impressive as it gets. Typing for Pat was no different. She really excelled and left an indelible mark on my brain. Pat was always friendly and never boastful of her skills. We weren't close like friends, but as classmates. Weird memory, I know, but I can almost hear Pat laughing over my memories of her. Rest in peace, Pat. Sympathy to your family, as well as Dick (who took me to my Senior Prom, bless his heart) and Sally and their families. (Suzie Clark Cross)
