“ I remember all of the trips she and pop-pop took me on in the truck to see the country when I was little and remember the silly songs we would sing as we drove down the highway. I also remember she would make her fudge and Mom and I used to eat it faster than she could put it on the plate. She loved spiced wafers and just loved to be able to sit back and watch everyone else have a good time. That to her was having a good time.
