“ Dear Barbara,
It wasn't too long ago when a wise woman and dear friend offered me such loving solace during my difficult time. Remember? "Keep in mind and heart that he is in a better place and that prayer is the best healer."

Your comforting words helped me. Now, I wish you comfort and peace on the loss of your dear son, Richard. Treasure warm memories, as truly, memories are the legacy of love.

May God's love comfort you and enfold you during your journey of grief. Take one day at a time and may it help you to know that others care. Be assured, too, that your faith, inner strength, and the power of God's love will carry you through. Hold close the promise... Blessed are they who mourn, for they shall be comforted. Matthew 5:4

My heart cries for you, dear friend.

Love in Christ,
